

I have found XM radio to be of high quality, a virtue reflected in its wide variety of programs and in its technical reliability. I greatly appreciate this company's use of cutting-edge technology to provide me and my fellow listeners with the best in national and local programs.

The push by the NAB to limit XM's offerings smacks of fear, a response well grounded, for local broadcasting (with the exception of NPR local stations) falls far short of meeting my needs. I urge action against HR 4026, as it is nothing short of an attempt to protect the inferior product of local stations.
